There is a special kind of disappointment that comes after a renovation. The new floors look beautiful, the kitchen is finally finished, and yet every surface in the house is coated in a fine layer of dust. Wipe a counter and it reappears the next day. For Roanoke homeowners in https://www.instapaper.com/read/2059136712 that position, a dedicated after-renovation cleaning service from The Happy Housekeepers can make the house feel like home again.

Living in the Dust After the Work Is Done

Reviews on the company website mention cleaning after floor refinishing and other contractor work, so the team has real experience with this kind of job. Floor sanding in particular sends extremely fine dust into the air, which then settles on window sills, blinds, baseboards, ceiling fans and light fixtures throughout the house, not just in the room that was worked on. Removing it properly takes methodical work from the top of each room down to the floor.

A post-renovation visit usually combines the standard residential checklist with specialized services. Furniture is dusted and polished, carpets are vacuumed, hard floors are cleaned using products appropriate to the finish, and kitchens and bathrooms receive a full cleanup. Walls and woodwork can be washed, light fixtures cleaned, and the inside of cabinets, ovens and refrigerators addressed if dust has found its way in.
