

LVL Music Academy maintains an active presence in Singapore's cultural calendar, with events and student performances that reflect the community's rich mix of cultural traditions. The academy's social media presence documents these events, including seasonal celebrations such as Chinese New Year, which the team and students mark with music, laughter, and festive activities. For families who are looking for a music school that is genuinely embedded in Singapore's multicultural community, rather than operating as a purely academic institution, LVL's engagement with cultural celebrations and community events reflects a Singapore violin shop warmth and inclusivity that is visible in its social media presence and in the testimonials of its students and parents. The academy's community orientation is also visible in the personal histories shared by founders Janice and Alan Senejani, who describe their motivation for establishing LVL as a belief that music changes lives and that quality musical education should be accessible to Cello Shop Singapore the widest possible range of students.
