A phone is usually the most expensive thing a student carries around in a back pocket, and the cracked screen that turns up in the first term has a knack for arriving when the bank balance is lowest. If you are typing mobile phone repair near me into your phone and counting every pound, the most useful thing you can do is learn what a repair actually costs compared with buying a replacement handset. At Free Fusion in Corby, an iPhone screen replacement starts from £24.99 and an iPhone battery replacement starts from £19.99, which is a small fraction of the price of a new phone.

Before you decide anything, work out what is really wrong. A cracked screen that still responds to touch is a different problem from a phone that shuts down at forty per cent, or one that only charges when the cable is held at an angle. The first is a screen job, the second usually points to a tired battery, and the third is often a worn or clogged charging port. An iPhone charging port replacement starts from £19.99, so a phone that is simply fussy about its cable does not need scrapping either. Free diagnosis is available for local customers, so you can find out what is needed before you spend anything.

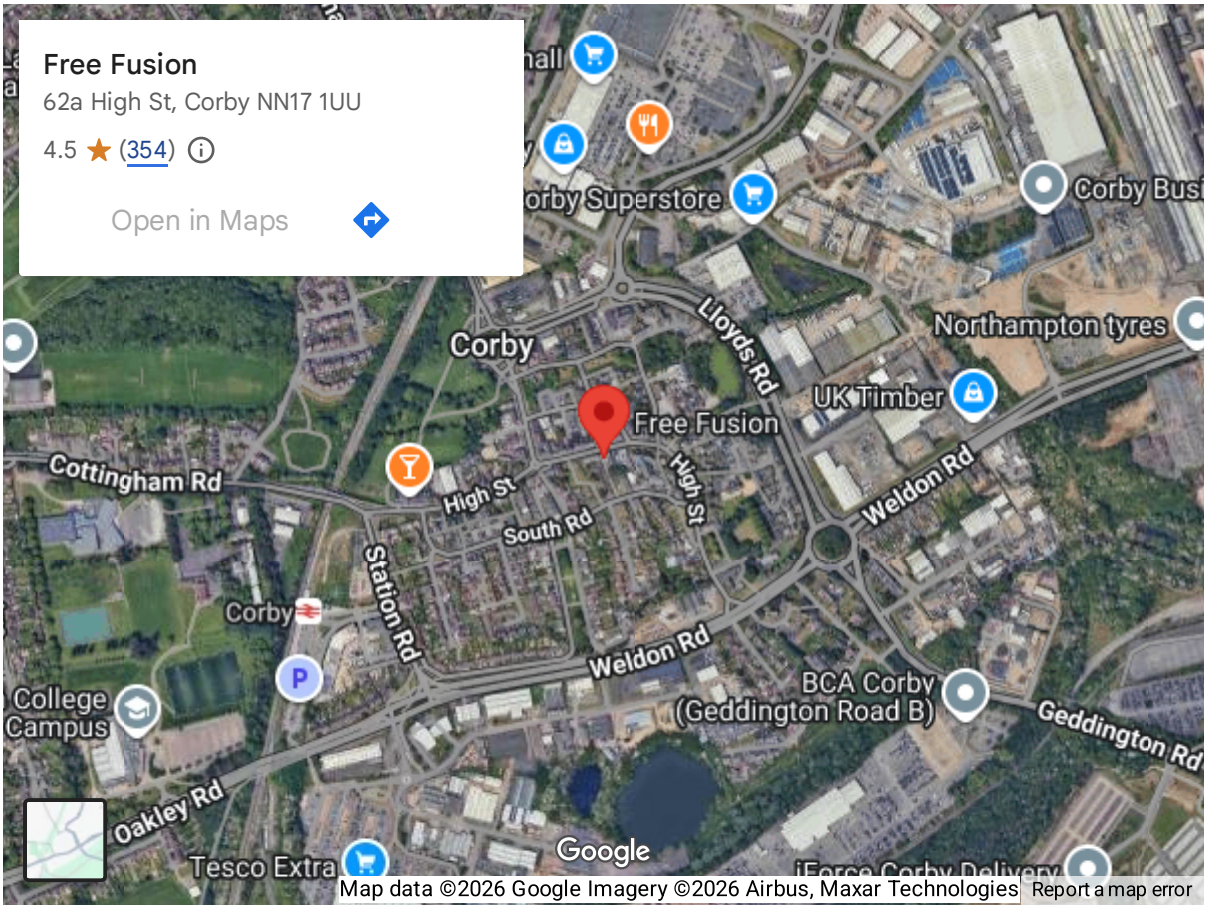

Back up before any repair, and make it a habit even when nothing is broken. Coursework, photos, saved notes and the authenticator apps you use to log in to everything all live on the phone. On an iPhone, an iCloud backup or a backup to a computer covers the essentials, and on Android phones the Google backup in settings does most of the job. Make sure you know your Apple ID or Google account password as well as your screen passcode, because you may be asked for them when the phone is tested afterwards. Taking the case off before you hand the phone over saves a minute or two as well.

Time is the other thing students never have enough of, so it helps that most smartphone screen and battery replacements at the Corby centre are completed within about an hour. Same-day service is available for most repairs, which means a free gap between lectures or a weekend at home in Weldon, Gretton or Kettering can be enough to get the phone sorted. The shop opens on weekdays and Saturdays, maps.app.goo.gl Mobile Phone Repair Near Me so it is worth ringing first if your timetable is tight. Students based away from Northamptonshire are not left out, because postal repairs run across the UK via Royal Mail and DPD, and mailed devices are typically tested and dispatched the same day they arrive.

A few habits stretch a repair further than you might expect. A decent case with a raised edge protects the glass when the phone lands face down on a pavement, and keeping the phone out of the same pocket as your keys prevents the scratches that often start cracks. If the phone has already taken a knock, get it looked at sooner rather than later, because a small crack tends to spread and can let dust and moisture in. Ring Free Fusion on 01536 260 558 to talk through your phone, or walk in at 62a High St, Corby and have a repair specialist take a look while you wait.
